CITY RED CROSS DRIVE MOUNTS TO $20,000,000

Daniel Guggenheim's Team Leads With $610,000 in Contributions.

BIGGEST GIFT 18 $500,000

Dividend Donation by a Copper Company May Reach $1,500,000.

New York's total contributions to the Red Cross fund climbed near the $29.800.000 mark yesterday. Just how big the fund actually is it is impossible to stimate, and the amount pledged may take it beyond that figure, but by a conservative estimate of the collections announced at the midday luncheon yesterday and the promised dividended donated by large corporations $29.000.800 will about stand as New York's participation.

At the luncheon in the Chamber of New York's total contributions to the

At the luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce, at which the thirty team captions and their helpers got together to ascertain the result of their labors, tremendous enthusisam was aroused when it was found that the day's total had reached the sum of $2,217,248. That added to the subscriptions of the day before make a total of $5,402,032 for the thirty teams. Although part of this may be figured in the $14,000,000 mark reached the day before, it is certain that there was enough new money to boost the total to about $20,000,000. reached the day before, it is certain that there was enough new money to boost the total to about $20,000,000. boost the total to about $20,000,000.

The largest single contribution of the fay was $500,000 contributed by Guggenheim Bros, half of which went to the team captained by Daniel Guggenheim and part to that of which Jacob H. Schiff is the head. But even larger than this actual contribution is the estimated value of the amount pledged by the Wolverine Copper Mining Company, on the basis of a special dividend of 50 cents to be declared on their $3,000,000 capitalization, which would result in a donation of $1,500,000.

Rivalry of the Teams.

The team members were rather ex-ited when they sat down to luncheon the Chamber of Commerce and wonered to what extent their rivals had utstripped them. There was a steady uzz of conversation and a hectic adding figures to find out how they stood fore the time came to announce the tals for each team and the large inividual contributions. Across one end the room stretched a large white sard on which was the name of each

After the inner persons of the After the inner persons of the men and women present had been satisfied there was a demand for silence on the part of Seward Prosser, chairman of the campaign committee, and the anacuncement that as the number of each was called the captain would rise and give the total. Courtesy suggested that they start with the women first, and so Mrs. Richard Aldrich had the honor of sixty the first total for the day 320.022. iving the first total for the day, $30,025, he was greeted with much applause, at it was nothing to what Mrs. Charles inced a total of $100,000.

When it came to the men there was a remendous shout as T. A. Gillespie an-ounced a total of $424,265, but when Daniel Guggenheim quietly placed his team total at $610,000, of which his firm had given the larger part, the dignified pictures of New York's great then of business on the walls fairly rattled as the result of the handclapping.

The Team Totals.

Large Contributors.

Besides the large contribution made by Guggenheim Brothers there were many others, some of which were F. L.
